It makes me think I might be interested in surgery.
We start anatomy soon, which I think is more memorization.
But I think I did okay on the tests.
Still, I was surprised at how friendly he appeared.
A puddle of preservative chemicals pooled around her face, and I felt guilty.
A very very tired medical student.
The first hour was useless: we as a class were completely unprepared for the professor's lecture on the intricacies of spinal anatomy.
On top of that, I'm headed to Washington D.
They didn't support that view with any further reasoning.
The presentations came next, and to be honest I wasn't looking forward to them.

I think it's freezing in Michigan.

It was a very inspiring lecture, and it was a lot of fun to see such a big name come to our school and live up to the hype.

A few other things he said of note: He mentioned that when they first began offering HIV screenings for Haitians, no one showed up.

I and two other prospective roommates are edging closer and closer to housing, so things are looking good.

The teachers are nice, if not always the best.

Normally I would've said no because I was all set to attend Case, but Miami's financial aid was too nice.

The entire class seems fatigued.

The first hour was useless: we as a class were completely unprepared for the professor's lecture on the intricacies of spinal anatomy.

It's saddening to think about how much time I have left in Michigan.

' Farmer responded " Well it's too easy to just say stigma.

The next day, we woke up early and had a great breakfast.

This will be a long weekend.

When he walked in today I could tell he was Paul Farmer without ever seeing his face.

We raised the body to the top of the table using pulleys on the sides, and paused a second before doing anything else.

He went on to explain that once anti-retrovirals like AZT were available, the screening for HIV skyrocketed.

They didn't support that view with any further reasoning.

I was ready and excited to head to Cleveland for medical school, but then Miami came calling.

And everything is smooth sailing as long as you're talking about small stuff.

It wasn't nearly as hard as I thought it might be.

They have a population of young children and the elderly.

Everyone seems pretty nervous about the difficulty of medical school.

We raised the body to the top of the table using pulleys on the sides, and paused a second before doing anything else.

There are other questions like this, like whether African-Americans are better athletes.
