I had a pair of drum sticks in there.

You get to that point.

"Cris is still down in Arizona," Marcus told LiveDaily.

That's how I've always dealt with this craziness, outside of the fact that it's not good to have your relatives shot.

Is there a larger tour on the horizon?

I'm the sound guy on this.

There's no stopping him now.

I've always known who they were and I always made an effort to try to check them out whenever they came through Manhattan.

That kind of stuff used to happen.

He's like, "You ought to just go up and play the drums and let them hear you."

" Not like, "I want to be in your band.
' He's just turning back into a streamlined bad-ass bass player that he is.
That kind of stuff used to happen.
We're used to the ethic.
How do you shoot somebody in the back?
I had gone to see Curt solo, acoustic shows and stuff like that.
We haven't even thought about it because we have so much going on.
It was a good medium, between the whole SST ethic of just getting whatever you g ot on the initial takes and kind of getting into it and tweezing it.
You want to be cooperative and be as generous as you can be.
I was just kind of in bands, in bar bands.
These guys, I've sort of followed for a long time.
When are we going to read the end of the story?
They had done some demos with Tim Alexander from Primus.
It's pretty funny, actually.
" I wasn't in some kind of Meat Puppets band or something like that.
We're used to the ethic.
As a fan, it must have been horrifying to read about Cris Kirkwood's troubles.
We're used to the ethic.
It was so fortuitous to be able to do it in the first place.
" We went to Arizona and met Cris, interviewed him, talked to a lot of people do wn there about Meat Puppets, and sort of took it from there.
He keeps dropping sizes.
They knew I had just sort of gone freelance and was branching out on my own, sta rting my own company.
We have the same kind of ethic, more or less.
He's one of the first people I ever met on the road.
" I was a little bit like, "Oh I don't know.
I got to know him through his wife, who works at MTV.
I wouldn't do it otherwise.
I'm really stupid like that, But, I mean, everybody does, outside of the bohemia n and dreaming element.
They know the art is being treated with the respect that it deserves.
I'm a musician my whole life but I was hired to do a different job.
I was trying to figure out a way to interject gracefully that I could do this an d maybe take some of the burden off of him.
It's pretty funny, actually.
I was in the phone book back then.
I had them for years, a lot of them, but just kind of never got them done.
" I start to gauge things by money sometimes.
They know the art is being treated with the respect that it deserves.
My buddies and I were like, "It's over.
I don't think people expected it.
" I'm like, "It's not my place to say anything.
My buddies and I were like, "It's over.
Those guys saw that and they just opened up on me.
He got me on the phone because I was in the phone book.
" I wasn't in some kind of Meat Puppets band or something like that.
Sent to prison after the shooting, Cris Kirkwood cleaned up his act, literally a nd figuratively.
My whole agenda is to realize this reunion and help it.
He hit this cop but he never deserved to be shot in the back.
I worked with her for years.
Or, if there is, it's just kind of constructive criticism and we can blow them o ff if we want to.
Cris' whole agenda is getting his life back, getting his band back and getting h is body back.
Fortunately, through my connections in working with MTV for so many years, I had the opportunity to meet Curt once or twice socially.
I went upstairs and conspired with the engineer.

He's really lucky to be walking.

What we have to do is pretty much like we have to make it stick when we do it.
